Mr. C. W. MACFARLANE:—It affords me pleasure to recommend, to any one whose hair is falling out, the use of DR. POTTIE'S HAIR OIL. My hair was coming out at such a rate as led me to believe that I would soon become bald. After using the oil for five weeks this ceased entirely; none whatever is now falling out. I consider it the best and only worthy remedy for this trouble so recommend it as a stimulant to new growth.

WEDDING ETIQUETTE.

Bridesmaids, Groomsmen and Pages—Wedding Favors—At the Church.

It is noteworthy how frequently children are chosen to act as bridesmaids and pages. Abroad it has become an established custom to have pages in attendance, even at so called quiet weddings, one or two, as the case may be. Occasionally at smart weddings as many as four pages accompany four little bridesmaids, and thus follow the bride. This fashion of choosing children obviates the necessity of the elder sisters of a bride acting as bridesmaids when there is a disparity of age or when there are several sisters still unmarried and the youngest is the bride elect. Besides, it is considered more picturesque to include pretty children in the bridal group than to have only young ladies in and out of their teens. The nearest relatives of the bride and bridegroom are chosen for this office, the children of the married brothers and married sisters or of favorite cousins.

It is always considered a compliment to be asked to officiate as bridesmaids by the girl friends of a bride, and with her it rests to decide upon the bridesmaids' dresses, color and style; but, although these dresses are generally made by the same dressmakers, yet the expense is not borne by the parents of the bride, but by the parents of the bridesmaids severally.

It is also the custom to invite the friends of the bridegroom to act as groomsmen. Formerly this title was considered bad style and was not applied to any of the bridegroom's friends and supporters. Their duties are almost nil, as the best man undertakes all that is required to be done on the bridegroom's behalf.

The old fashioned wedding favor is now a thing of the past, and even the floral buttonhole bouquets, which superseded it, are fast following in its wake, at many smart weddings no wedding favors of any kind being given to the guests. For one thing, it takes up so much time to distribute buttonhole bouquets to a very large number of guests, and thus it is more occasionally than generally done.

The bridesmaids and pages should wait the bride's arrival at the entrance, inside the church, ranged on either side, and should then close up in the order in which it was previously arranged that they should walk. The bridegroom and best man should, on the contrary, await the bride's coming with the clergy. The relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom should, on arrival, take the seats allotted to them on either side of the nave, the bridegroom's friends on the right hand side, the bride's on the left.
